

MANHATTAN MAGAZINE

Planning a wedding? Now you have a fashionable, upscale boutique where you can get donated designer bridal gowns—for a fraction of their original price.

Opened by Sheltering Arms Childrens Service, one of the city's premier non-profits, The Bridal Garden includes one-of-a-kind contemporary gowns donated by manufacturers, retailers, and individuals.

The shop features creations from Vera Wang, Carolina Herrera, Marissa, and others. Founded in 1823, Sheltering Arms is one of the oldest charities in the city, helping over 3,000 children and their families each year in day care, foster care, adoption, special education, after-school, and summer programs—and now you can help them on your wedding days as well.